

JOHN Q. ADAMS LECTURES ON ART

Needs of Municipalities Outlined at Hubbard Memorial Hall.

"Municipal Art" was the subject of the lecture last evening before the National Society of Fine Arts, at Hubbard Memorial Hall. The lecturer, John Quincy Adams, formerly executive secretary of the Municipal Art Society of New York city, was introduced by the president, Charles M. Foulke.

In his introductory remarks, Mr. Adams stated that it was impossible, so long as life was regulated by a succession of impressions, to teach the young the duties of good citizenship while their surroundings in the cities in which they lived taught lessons of a contrary nature.

In the collection of stereoscopic views used to illustrate the lecture the value of utilizing river and water fronts of cities, in the reclamation of slum sections by transforming them into parks, roadways, and boulevards was emphasized by pictures showing the treatment of river banks in foreign cities and contrasting these conditions with some of the water fronts in Philadelphia and other American cities. The contrast was also drawn between school buildings and prisons in other cities. As a rule, he claimed, the architecture of the school buildings and the surroundings of the buildings in which the young are educated are of the most ordinary type, while that of prisons and reformatories are of a far better class.

The multiplicity of artistic statues in public spaces was also made a matter of lengthy comment.

The urgent need for a national art commission was strongly advocated. Among the views shown were several of the plans adopted by the city of Cleveland and the more recent plan contemplated by the city of Chicago for beautifying the lake front by a system of parks, lagoons, and recreation houses for the general public.

DRURY LANE CLUB PLEASES AUDIENCE

Theatrical Entertainment Given for Benefit of St. Martin's Church.

The entertainment given by the Drury Lane Dramatic Club at Carroll Institute last night for the benefit of St. Martin's Church was most successful. The audience was large and enthusiastic. The first number on the program was "The Clever One-act farce, 'Betty Martin.' It was well received and brought much laughter and smiles. Miss Stella R. McFadden, as 'Betty,' made a hit, and was applauded heartily. She was ably supported by other members of the cast, which included Bernard Focke, Jr., George Meiling, John J. Carroll, Miss Elizabeth Reynolds, Miss Loreto Sullivan, and Miss Gertrude C. Lyddane. "Betty Martin" was followed by specialities. A tenor solo, "Love Me and the World Is Mine," by Miss Gertrude C. Lyddane, was well sung. Miss May Meiling gave a clever reading; Dr. William M. Kenball sang and was followed by a violin solo by Delphin Jaranilla. Other performers were Miss Stella R. McFadden, Chester R. Spencer, Miss Elizabeth Reynolds, George Meiling, George A. Finch and James F. Kelly. A duet, "When the Stars are Shining Brightly," by Miss Gertrude C. Lyddane and Miss Mary E. Wild, was especially good, as was "The Jealous Wife," recited by Miss Joseph Good. Miss Good has more than ordinary talent.

The entertainment closed with the one-act comedy, "A Terrible Secret," which was well acted by John J. Carroll, Miss May Meiling, Miss Regina Sullivan, and George Meiling.

SCHOOL INSPECTORS FINISH THEIR TOUR

Col. John Biddle, Engineer Commissioner; James Knox Taylor, supervising architect of the Treasury, and W. E. Chancellor, superintendent of public schools, returned to the city last night from a tour of inspection of the public schools of Baltimore and New York, where they spent the past week. Colonel Biddle said this morning that he and his colleagues saw a number of things worthy of adoption by the District schools in the way of stairways, arrangement of class rooms and ventilation; that the new girls' high school of Baltimore is the finest and most complete school structure he had ever visited. He said the cleanliness and completeness of the New York schools were a marvel; that the new schools there have been constructed regardless of cost, are imposing, and in the place of fire-escapes numerous stairways are substituted, large auditoriums, or assembly rooms, form an important feature of all the big schools of New York. Most of the buildings, Colonel Biddle said, have been erected on ground costing from $100,000 to $400,000, and that little or none of this ground is devoted to playgrounds, most of the buildings being opposite large parks, which the pupils use for playgrounds.

The party visited West Orange, N. J., where Dr. Chancellor formerly lived.
